In 1957, over my opposition, the Civil Rights Commission came into being. Its objectives were to assess the laws and policies of the Federal Government in regard to denials of equal protection under the law, to report its findings and recommendations to the President within 2 years, and then disappear. It is now 1972, that particular report has never been made, and the Commission is here again asking for large sums of public money and yet another extension. Congress has extended the life of the Commission five times since its inception in 1957. Its permanent staff has grown from 87 in 1959 to 176 in 1972. An additional 40 permanent positions have been requested for fiscal year 1973, and no one knows how many employees it will have by 1978. Amounts appropriated for the work of the Commission have swelled from an original appropriation of $777,000 in 1959 to almost $4 million in fiscal year 1972. It is interesting to observe that when the Commission was subject to 1 - or 2 - year extensions, as they were prior to 1964, increases in appropriations and staff were kept under control. But, as the extensions have become longer, the appropriations and staff have risen in dramatic proportion. The whole experience illustrates the proposition that the longer an agency stays in existence, and the further it gets from congressional review, the more deeply entrenched it becomes and the more extravagant with money. There is nothing more permanent than a...
