Excerpt from The Early History of Palmyra: Thanksgiving Sermon, Delivered at Palmyra, N. Y., November 26, 1857 Thanksgiving was first instituted as a social and family festival to commemorate especially the perils, virtues and providential deliverances of the Pilgrims, who, on the 22d day of December, 1620, landed on Plymouth rock. Since then, it has been adopted by nearly every State in the Union as The Forefather s day, in which the early ancestry of every community have justly claimed a share in its reminiscences. Such reviews are designed to quicken our patriotism and our piety, and give new strength to the roots which bind us to the soil and the principles of our progenitors. It was a noble senti ment of the ancient Greek, who, while celebrating the valor and firmness of his ancestors, exclaimed, Dying, [will remember Argos. I am sure, you will not regard it inappropriate, on this occasion, to direct your thoughts to a *past generation, - to the men, whose names you bear, Whose memories you honor, whose land you inherit.
