Excerpt: . . . of Christ were the sole content of religion; assent to dogmas, the external works of holiness, the whole worldly organisation of Church life, appeared to be matters of indifference and even hindrances: the believing soul demands only the freedom of its own religious life, --a demand that transcends all these outward works. This was the inner source of the Reformation. Luther himself had not only searched Augustine, he had also edited the German Theology and his word let loose the storm of this religious longing, with which, in the conflict against Rome, an impulse of national independence was also mingled. But when the Protestant State Church became again consolidated in the fixed forms of a theoretical system of doctrine, and clung to this the more anxiously in proportion as it was obliged to struggle for its existence in the strife of Confessions, then the...
