CURE OF RECTAL CANCER WITHOUT MUTILATING SURGERY

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: Éditions universitaires européennes | A clinical complete response after neoadjuvant treatment: A key end point for organ preservation in rectal cancer | Rectal cancer is observed in 12 000 patients each year in France. In nearly all the cases the treatment for cure require a surgery which always remove the whole rectum with a poor bowel function and needs sometimes a permanent diverting colostomy ("a bag"). Since some years a new approach appears possible. The aim is..
