Illustrated Weekly Journal of Horticulture in All Its Branches, Vol. 55: Midsummer, 1899 (Classic Reprint) (Paperback)

By W Robinson

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Illustrated Weekly Journal of Horticulture in All Its Branches, Vol. 55: Midsummer, 1899 The subject of these notes has been an ardent horticulturist and grower of new and rare plants for many years past, as the volumes of The Garden from the commencement so fully testify. Living in one of the most favoured spots in the British Isles, Mr. Gumbleton has had at Belgrove, his residence on the Great Island in Cork Harbour, advantages exceptionally favourable for experiments in the introduction and acclimatising of plants likely to prove valuable to our gardens. Seeds, bulbs and plants from many parts of the world have found a home here, and the results of trials and comparisons made have been continuously given to the readers of The Garden. Amongst what would prove too long a list to enumerate as a record of this garden the following are found, and should here be noticed. In 1875, a year before it was in commerce, was bloomed here for the first time in this kingdom the double tuberous Begonia Lemoinei, the precursor of such a...
