Excerpt: . . . were read by me but haslily in my desire to send them to the Department at the earliest moment. I believe, however, that they give a full account of all his proceedings, and his reasons for them. I have required a statement from Assistant Surgeon Gillespie, who came here in charge of the wounded, but it differs in no material respect from the report of Commander Low. I have just had an interview with Mr. Isaac Sisson, United States consul at Mazatlan, who came here in the steamer Continental last evening. He asserts that the Forward was decidedly piratical; that, besides the raid upon Guaymas, she attempted the capture of a conducts from some place in the interior, which barely escaped; that she was flying the San Salvador flag, though acting under the orders of the Mexican revolutionist, Vega, who had, however, made no prounciamiento, nor was any revolution in progress; and that San Salvador was at peace with Mexico. Discharged for uniacomluct at Cartagena, South America. He further states that Commander Low decided upon his course of action after free conference with Governor Eubi, of the state of Sinaloa, General Darius, commanding the forces in that state, and himself; and that the attack was made at the request of those Mexican authorities. He asserts his conviction that it was the intention of the commander of the Forward to attack, and capture, if possible, one of the Panama steamers, and perhaps the Continental, which...
