AUTHORHOUSE, United States, 2006. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.One evening while waiting for our wives to say goodnight to each other after a meeting, I mentioned to Herb Fried that I had never learned the order of the Minor Prophets by heart. By the time our wives were ready to get into the cars (OK, so that might not have been all that short a time), I had them memorized. To this day, if you ask me what book is the third one of the twelve Minor Prophets, I will immediately picture the legs of a three-legged stool saying, Aim us! Aim us! The answer, of course, is the prophet Amos. Why had I mentioned to Herb that after earning a BA in Jewish Studies and rabbinic ordination after six years in rabbinical school, I had never memorized the names of those books in order? Very simple: I knew that Herb would be successful in getting me to memorize them, and that we would have great fun in the process. I knew that from watching Herb teach in the religious school in our synagogue. More accurately, I knew it from watching his students. When he was a regular teacher, everybody loved his classes, and when he was substituting, every child who saw him hoped it was his or her class that Herb had come to teach. You see, no one had to work in Mr. Fried s classes. His classes were playtime, an hour of fun and games. We never would have allowed him to do such a thing in our school, of course, if not for the fact that after an hour of Herb s fun and games, the kids learned more than in a month of regular classes. They...
