But, in a hunter, the proper position of his head is a point of the greatest moment, as without it his rider cannot handle him properly Hunter. at his fences; and if he be not a regular star-gazer, he is ---V /always dangerous to ride over a country. The proper junction of the head with the neck, and the carrying of it well or ill, depend chiefly on two particular muscles contained in the neck. The most important of these is called the splenitis muscle, which constitutes the principal bulk of the neck above, and its action is sufficiently evident, namely, very powerfully to elevate the head and neck. The principal beauty of the neck, indeed, as well as the carriage of the head, depends on this...
