Patterns of the Past has been published to commemorate the one hundredth annivarsary of the founding of the Ontario Historical Society. Its objectives, for a century, have been to promote and develop the study of Ontarios past. The purpose of this book is both to commemorate and to carry on that wrothy tradition. Introduced by Ian Wilson, Archivist of Ontario, and edited by Roger Hall, William Westfall and Laurel Sefton MacDowell, this distinctive volume is a landmark not only in the Societys history but in the princes historiography. Eighteen scholars have pooled their talents to fashion a volume of fresh interpretive essays that chronicle and analyze the whole scope of Ontarios rich and varied past. New light is thrown on our understanding of early native peoples, rural life in Upper Canada, the opening of the North, the impact of railways, and the growth of businesses and institutions. And there is much social study here too, especially of the new roles for women in industrial society, of working class experience, of ethnic groupops, and of children in our societys past. As well, there are innovative treatments of the conservation movement, of sciences role in provincial society, and of the relationship between society and culture in small towns.
