Excerpt from Students and the World-Wide Expansion of Christianity: Addresses Delivered Before the Seventh International Convention of the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions, Kansas City, Missouri, December 31, 1913 to January 4, 1914 In the Book of Isaiah there is a striking passage which represents God as wondering that there was no intercessor. Be the interpretation of these words what it may, there can be no question that they suggest a most necessary and profitable reflection for Christians to-day. In view of all that we know about the character of God as revealed in Christ, and in view of the countless lessons from the experience of those who have given themselves to intercessory prayer, it must be the occasion of real wonder to Him that among His many children there are not more and better intercessors. With reference to how many places and causes in His world-wide Kingdom might it not be said, with truth and aptness, there is no intercessor? Remembering who He is and what His ways and resources are, should we think it strange that He is amazed at the paucity of intercessors? It is well that we try to answer the question, Why would God wonder that there is no intercessor? Why would He be surprised that those who profess to believe in Him and who desire to do His will fail in this highest work to which He calls them? Must not God wonder at the lack of intercessors in view of the fact that His mightiest works are manifested only in the pathway of unselfish and persevering intercession? The history of the Church and Christian experience show conclusively that the workers and...
