Excerpt from The Latter-Day Saints Millennial Star, Vol. 72: February 3, 1910 The act of discarding certain books or epistles, as was done by the compilers of the Bible, has contributed in no small degree to the lack of clearness in certain places in the Book. If one were to receive a letter from a friend, or a business letter, from which a page had been lost, considerable difficulty might be experienced in making out the clear meaning of the whole. If a correspondence were carried on between two persons, and one letter in a series were lost, a different understanding from what was intended might result. We accept the Bible in its present form, but believe that if other writings had been handed down the Book would have been more complete. The Latter-day Saints accept the Old Testament as well as the New Testament. The writer has come in contact with a number of fervent Christians who attach little importance to the Old Testament. But, since Jesus deemed these Scriptures of value in testifying of Himself (Luke 4: 17-21) and Peter referred to them frequently (Acts 2: 25-28 and elsewhere), and Philip found them...
