Excerpt from The Annual Report of the Council and Transactions of the Hull Literary and Philosophical Society for the Session 1878-1879 The Class for Practical Telegraphy has also been newly formed, and, under the direction of Mr. T. Harrison, of the Postal Telegraphs, and subject to an examination which W. H. Preece, Esq., (v.p. Inst. Tel. Engineers) has very kindly undertaken to conduct, appears likely to fulfil a very useful, intellectual, and industrial office in the town and to the above gentlemen and to Mr. Alfred Simpson, mime who has conducted a class in Technical Arithmetic (which is intended to give a general introduction to the classes in applied science), the Society owes many thanks for the work they have thus cheerfully imposed upon themselves. Additional Class-rooms and a Laboratory having been provided during the year, the Council repeat their Opinion that the utmost facility should be afforded for the development of this Branch of the Society's operations, and they hope that the attention to be given to this department of the Institution, and to the University Extension Movement, during the next...
