Excerpt from Educational Culture for the People of Manitoba: An Address at Convocation of the University of Manitoba, 10th May, 1912 We are all zealous for the reputation of our community and the good name of our country - for their place of honor. Influence and power. Their rank and security in these respects depend chiefly upon the education of the people. And to my mind the people of a Province. Organized for government and education. Have a responsibility for conditions and issues which is more than the sum total of the obligations of all its citizens taken individually. The Province is trustee for some institutions and standards which have their roots in dim. Remote antiquity. And for others which were planted but yesterday. It is also the custodian of the material resources an opportunity through which its citizens may have reasonable equality of opportunity to earn satisfaction through liberty and labor. It is its business to improve and conserve the public heritage this public heritage in the University, and to pass it on enriched by intelligent goodwill and developed by...
