Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Excerpt from Lessons From the Desk When Delsarte put into words his great law, Strength at the center - freedom at the circumference, he performed an inestimable service to those who want to know how to become masters of their own powers. It furnishes the hint that changes timid incertitude and self-consciousness into forceful mastery. Applied directly to teachers, two things are essential to efficiency, conviction of truth and precise information. In proportion as these are strong in the center (heart and brain) of the teacher will be his freedom in the use of all his faculties in imparting knowledge. When our convictions become strong our utterance becomes free. A mother pleads for her child with unstudied but impressive eloquence born of the strength of her passionate love. The Bible teacher who is on fire with love for Christ and for souls will find facility of expression unknown to one whose heart is cold. This, of course, is the first requisite. But that other essential of inward strength - precise information - is only second in importance. Multitudes of zealous, warm-hearted teachers are weak and faltering in their utterance because their ideas are hazy. Not sure of facts, or confused about their arrangement, embarrassment becomes painful. The Normal method of analysis and presentation of truth is the cure for this weakness. Terse, unequivocal statements, drilled into the mind by constant repetition and impressed by simple arrangement on the blackboard.
