Promoting Clean Urban Public Transportation and Green Investment in Kazakhstan

By -

Organization For Economic Co-Operation & Development. Paperback. Condition: New. 2 pages. This report discusses the main results of a study on how to reduce air pollution from urban public transport in Kazakhstan. More specifically, it presents the analysis of how to design a green public investment program in this sector. This sector represents an opportunity for Kazakhstan to address key objectives in its environmental and climate-related policies as part of the countrys ambitions to transit to a green economic path of development. In addition to supporting environmental and climate-related objectives, the program is designed to support the modernization of the urban transport fleet in the country as well as stimulate the domestic market to shift to modern buses powered by clean fuels. The program is designed to be implemented in two phases: Phase 1 which covers the cities of Kostanay and Shymkent; and Phase 2 which extends the coverage to all major urban centres in Kazakhstan. Two scenarios for the implementation of the second (extended) phase of the program are developed. Their total cost is estimated to be up to EUR 300 mln. These investments are expected to result in significant air improvement with NOx emissions seeing the greatest decline...
