Excerpt: .pass transversely across the mastax to the dorsal ends of the rami; they are imbedded in the walls of the mastax and support them during the pumping action. Two well developed ventral salivary glands are present; the right gland is considerably larger than the left. The oesophagus is unusually long and slender. The gastric glands are small and rounded. The stomach and intestine are not distinctly separated. The ovary is large and ovate in outline. A normal bladder is present. The foot glands are long and slightly club-shaped. The ganglion is small and saccate. The retrocerebral organ consists of a small, clear sac and two subcerebral glands, as large as the sac. Neither glands nor sac contain bacteroids. The eyespot is large and at the posterior end of the ganglion; two pigment spots or accessory eye-spots are situated on the corona, immediately under the...
