Excerpt from The Necessity of the Atonement: A Sermon, Preached in the Chapel of the South Carolina College, on the 1st Day of December, 1844 The method by which God can be just and, at the same time, justify those who are ungodly. On this account it is styled by the Apostle the power of God unto sal vation. This expression he seems to have employed as an exact definition of the scheme of redemption. The gospel is not to be regarded as a simple revelation of the mercy of God and His ability to pardon; it is itself His power as a Saviour. The implication is ir resistible that by the rich provisions of its grace and by them alone can the Lord deliver from going down to the pit; that, apart from the righteousness revealed to faith, Jehovah Himself, has not the power to receive the guilty into favour; that the mediation of Christ was the wonderful device of infinite wisdom to enable the Almighty, in. Consistency with justice, to save the lost. The phraseology of the text is a favourite...
