I take pleasure in sending you the following sketch of our beautiful valley: Location. The Mohawk Valley is a portion of the Great Gila Valley and lies on the north side of the Gila River, its western edge being about 38 miles from the town of Yuma on the Colorado River. The Southern Pacific Railroad runs parallel to the entire length of the Mohawk Valley and is at no place more than six miles distant. The Valley is irrigated by the Mohawk Canal, which is owned by the Mohawk Canal and Improvement Company, a California corporation. Climate. The climate is semi-tropical; that is, hot for four months and pleasantly mild for eight. June, July, August and September are the tropical months that give the country its phenomenal productiveness. It is the heat and the water combined that work the wonders of...
