Usually, they appear and disappear spontaneously not causing any serious problems or damage. In these cases, headaches are related to stress, problems with blood vessels, nervous system, physical inactivity, or problems with the muscles of the neck or eyes. Knowing the difference between a headache and a migraine is extremely important because it can mean a better treatment method and prevent future pain from occurring in the first place. Unlike traditional, low-intensity headaches that come and go without any pattern, migraines are more painful and is often a more severe type of headache. It s followed by some standard symptoms that include nausea, vomiting, sensitivity to light behind one eye or ear, and even temporary vision loss. In some cases, people experience such severe headaches that they are hospitalized. Some people tend to develop migraine patterns that appear a couple of days before a...
