Not illustrated. 1911 Excerpt: . . . were retained and commercial agents were at times employed to sell the companys goods in Holland. In Stockholm Benjamin Bonnell continued to be the salesman. He stood in closer relation to the company than the other factors, Trotzig and Schotting, and his salary was 600 D. a year, hence larger than that of any of the other officers. 38 He handled most of the tobacco which was brought into Sweden on behalf of the company and sold it in large and small quantities, until the Tobacco Company was organized in 1643. From that time until 1652 he sold only in wholesale to the members of the Tobacco Company. The peltries brought from America were also sold by him, except in cases where they were sent to Holland. He made contracts with Dutch merchants and large quantities of tobacco were brought to Sweden under these agreements. All expenses connected with the tobacco trade were paid by him, such as duty on the tobacco shipped from Holland to Sweden, freight, warehouse-rent and other items and charged to the company. In some cases he also paid out money directly to the companys creditors, from the proceeds of his sales, but he generally sent the money to Beier. There seem to have been no strict rules about it, and the most convenient way was perhaps adopted. His services for the company came to an end in 1652. 37 Timon van Schotting remained as factor in Gothen 35 Kramer charged the...
