Excerpt from Doctor George Faulkner of Jamaica Plain: July 14, 1819 August 27, 1911 We next find him associated with a much older physician, Dr. Luther M. Harris of the old town of West Roxbury, residing in that part of it now known as Jamaica Plain, and when, not long after, Dr. Harris died, Dr. Faulkner succeeded to his practice. For thirty-two consecutive years he practised medicine in Jamaica Plain, and in his later years he was often heard to say, No man ever had finer people to care for. Most of them were so intelligent that if I told them I didnt know what ailed them they didnt dismiss me; and even if I told them they didnt need any medicine they still wanted me to keep coming. And most of them paid their bills. Sayings like this - oi which there are many - may possibly give to those who did not know him, some faint idea of the manner of man Dr. Faulkner was.
