Excerpt: . . . The history of the oyster fisheries of Arcachon is not less instructive. The Bay of Arcachon may be almost said to be made for oysters. It has the shape of an equilateral triangle, nine or ten miles on the side; and it debouches by a channel, 30 fathoms deep at the mouth, situated at its northernmost angle, into the Bay of Biscay. The winds and waves of this stormy region have thrown up a range of high sand dunes along the western boundary, and these dunes, covered with pines, shelter the bay from the violence of the westerly gales. The difference of height between high and low water (ordinary tides) is 15 to 16 feet. At flood tide, the whole surface of the bay, except an island in the middle (He des Oiseaux) is covered, but, at ebb tide the greater part is dry,...
